

Along the waterfront of Manila Bay are many small huts, from where vendors ply their wares of cold drinks and a variety of food. ~~Just~~ Alongside one of these a young man sat washing dishes using two buckets of water for washing and then rinsing the crockery. I photographed him (asking first) and then took a few pictures of his ~~small~~ family and their hut. They asked us if we'd like to buy some soft drinks so we set and bought a round of Pepsi's for all around. We talked, but mainly listened and learned that all the vendors along the waterfront are members of GABRIELA, a women's organisation that fight for fairness and civil rights and are against governmental bad practices.

Along the Waterfront

Along the waterfront of Manila Bay are many small huts from where vendors sell their wares of cold drinks and a variety of food.

Alongside one of these, a young man sat washing dishes using two buckets of water for washing and then rinsing the crockery. I photographed him (asking first) and then took a few pictures of his family and their hut.

They asked us if we'd like to buy some soft drinks so we sat and bought a round of Pepsi's for all around. We talked, but mainly listened and learned that all the vendors along the waterfront are members of GABRIELA, a women's organisation that fights for fairness and civil rights and are against governmental bad practices.